RANDOM PONDERINGS

I played pinochle twice in August and did well once and not so good the other time. I am playing again soon and hope to regain top form.

In July I started working on a sermon with a scrapbooking theme not knowing when I would preach again and that date is September 13 at Tualatin Hills Christian Church. It should be fun to give this message.

I will attempt to play golf Sept. 6 in a four-person scramble tournament.

SINGLES MINISTRY

<http://www.westsidesingles.org>

We heard from Professor Mark Ocker twice about understanding worldviews. His messages were very good and informative.

On Saturday Sept. 19 we are hosting Navigate, a singles leadership conference. This conference is a national event that travels to 7 or 8 locations a year. It is a honor to be part of this event.

We suspect that the vanilla ice cream taste test voting was altered.

CALL OUTS

<http://www.nwsca.org>

The devotion for this month is "Your Witness" posted as a blog on MySpace.

In this section I will also include the men's class at THCC that I have been teaching since January. I created a study guide on parables for them. The purpose of this guide is to help the person teaching when I am not there. There will Sundays that I will be elsewhere and this will aid in the preparation of the lesson. We will not be studying parables as a unit of study, there at least 55 of them.

I am presently teaching a series on the Life of Christ that is scheduled to conclude December 13. Then we address some other topics that came up, then in February begin a series on worldviews.

I did one ride-a-long in August. We were called to get a deer out of the middle of road, but we could not find that deer. About 90 minutes later we called to investigate a cougar sighting that had jumped across the road in front of motorcycle rider. We found evidence of the cougar, a trail and foot prints. I was excited to hunt deer and cougar on a ride-a-long. I was with a WCSO deputy in the area out past Hagg Lake that is not heavily populated and mostly forest.

Take care.
