RANDOM PONDERINGS

I was invited to a pinochle game but could not participate. I arrived late, the men had lost three games to the women. I was asked to take over one of the hands and the men won the next three games. Pinochle is a great game!

I helped teach two hunter education independent study classes in Salem the last week of September. All the students passed. It is my goal to pass each student, but they still have to meet the requirements, I hate to see them fail.

SINGLES MINISTRY

Westside hosted a Navigate Singles Leaders conference. This event was well attended and a lot of work to make happen but worth the effort.

The week before that conference we were able to have to social time with the speaker. One of the more fun things was watching the final of America's Got Talent with her.

The devotion for this month is "Our Words" post as a blog on MySpace.

CALL OUTS

The sermon I gave on Sept 13 was well received. 12 points on scrapbooking and as proof I brought in two big albums of animals.

THCC had their first annual golf event. My team finished 4 under par for second place, we each got a dozen plastic golf balls as our prize so we could practice more. However, we did not have any bogey's in our round, all pars or birdies.

The Men's class study of the Life of Christ is still on schedule. A new small group mid-week study started and I am team teaching the book of Hebrews.

I was able to attend the first night of the Answers in Genesis program at Rolling Hills church. This was great. I have ordered the new book by Jason Lisle that he spoke from that night.

In recognition of 9-11, I gave blood and then reflected on the events of eight years ago. This one the tough days for me of the year.

The WCSO Explorers had to deal with the loss of one their own. I was asked to help with their first reactions and was there for a follow up session. This is a major life event for these young people. Pray for them.

Take care.
